Nancy Wahlig, Director, Campus Advocacy, Resource and Education

Victims and survivors of violence may seek support as they begin to recognize the impact of a traumatic experience on their academics. It is important for faculty and staff to understand their responsibility to provide a trauma-informed response. In this training, participants will learn how to best support students impacted by sexual assault, relationship violence, and stalking.

Participants who complete the training will be able to:

- Recognize common reactions to trauma
- Implement the 5 steps for an effective and trauma-informed response
- Understand the confidential 24/7 services offered by CARE at the Sexual Assault Resource Center
